How to Use HireLoop

Everyone opens the same web address and signs in. The app then shows a different dashboard depending on their role.

First, the owner sets it up

1. Run the server and open the address (http://localhost:3000 on your computer, or your website's address once deployed).
2. Sign in as Admin with the email and password set at startup.
3. Check Settings. Choose whether new jobs need approval and whether registration is open.

Employer (a company that is hiring)

1. Click Create an account, choose I am hiring, and enter a company name.
2. Go to Post a job. Fill in the title, location, type, salary, description and requirements.
3. The job waits for the admin's approval, then goes live.
4. Under Applications, open each applicant, download their resume, and change the status (Reviewed, Shortlisted, Rejected or Hired).
5. Send a message to a candidate from the same screen.
6. My jobs lets you edit or delete listings. Statistics shows how many people applied.

Job seeker (a person looking for work)

1. Click Create an account and choose I am looking for a job.
2. In Profile, add your skills and upload your resume (PDF or Word). You need this before you can apply.
3. In Find jobs, search by keyword, location or job type, then click Apply and write a cover letter.
4. In My applications, follow the status of each one and read any messages from employers. Finished ones move to History.
5. Recommended lists jobs that match the skills in your profile.

Admin (the owner, or someone they trust)

- Job listings: approve or reject each job. Job seekers see only approved jobs.
- Users: add, edit or delete accounts, and change roles.
- Statistics and Live activity show how the site is being used.
- Settings: change the site name, approval rule, registration and resume size limit.

Using it with real people

Real users need a website address they can reach, so deploy the app first (see the README in the project).

- Share the link. Employers and job seekers register themselves.
- Keep the admin login private. Anyone who registers can only become an employer or job seeker, never an admin.
- There is no email yet, so users do not get notifications. They have to sign in to see new statuses and messages. A forgotten password can be reset by the admin from the Users tab.

Quick demo for a submission

Open three browser windows (use a private window or a different browser for each, since one browser keeps only one login). Sign in as the admin in the first, register as an employer in the second and as a job seeker in the third. Then walk through it in this order: the employer posts a job, the admin approves it, the job seeker uploads a resume and applies, and the employer updates the status and sends a message.
